Romulus City Council Race Heats Up

Steve Banko

Barry Baumann

Leroy Burcroff

Editor's note: With the primary for Mayor and Treasurer safely under the belts of Romulus voters, more attention is now being focused on the 11 City Council candidates – incumbents Mary Collins, Bill Crova, Randy Gear, Mike Prybyla, Debbie Romak, and Bill Wadsworth, and challengers Steve Banko, Barry Baumann, Leroy Burcroff, Bob McLachlan, and Don Morris. In our next four issues, The Romulus News will also focus on these competitors for the City's seven Council seats. Candidates Banko, Baumann, and Burcroff are featured in this issue; watch for our September 26, October 10, and October 24 editions for other profiles.

Steve Banko

"I have always dedicated myself to the betterment of the City of Romulus," stated Steve Banko, "whether it was by volunteering my time to the many organizations that I belonged to, or as the Ordinance Director for our city."

Certainly, the man has an impressive history of community involvement, including service as chairman of the Romulus Beautification Committee and Romulus Goodfellows, vice-president of the Cory Elementary School PTO, Little League baseball coach, and member of the Romulus North Little League Executive Board and the City's Environmental Task Force.

The 46-year-old – who identifies himself as a persistent, hard-working family man who will "say it as it is, and not beat around the bush" – is married to wife Carolyn, and has two sons: Steven and Nicholas. A graduate of Holy Redeemer High School, where he was president of the Student Council, Banko also completed more than three years at the University of Detroit.

The former director of the City of Romulus Ordinance Department (a position that he held for 12 years) believes that his experience in City government – combined with a common-sense approach to problem-solving and a basically honest nature – will stand him in good stead as a councilman.

"People who know me are well aware that I have always lived by a practical, 'what is good for one is good for all' philosophy," said Banko, "and that I am a trustworthy individual."

Because of his concern for public health and safety, as well as community prosperity, Banko says that he:

- remains opposed to the waste-well projects being pursued by Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc.;
- believes firmly in the fair enforcement of the City's ordinances; and
- is especially interested in making repairs and improvements to the City's roads, sidewalks, sewers – not just along major thoroughfares, but throughout the residential areas, as well.

Among the organizations endorsing Banko are the AFL-CIO, the UAW, and AFSCME.

For more information about the Banko campaign, call 941-5935.

Barry Baumann

"I hadn't been back to Romulus for more than two hours, when residents started encouraging me to seek public office again," smiled Barry Baumann, who served three terms on the Romulus City Council from (1981–1987) before being defeated by only 19 votes in the November '87 election. "I am truly humbled by the support that Romulus residents have offered me."

Baumann, 46, was a lifelong resident of Romulus until 1988, when he moved to the Lansing area; it was in 1994 that he returned to his home town. He attended St. Aloysius School, St. Mary's Preparatory (Orchard Lake), and St. Mary's College, where he received a B.A. in Liberal Arts in 1972.

Another candidate with sound community-involvement credentials, Baumann is a past member of the Romulus Jaycees, the Romulus Booster Club, and the Romulus Athletic Club, and also served as City Council's representative on the Planning Commission between 1981 and 1985.

Baumann says that he was amazed, upon his return to Romulus, to see the City in such turmoil: "[Mayor] Bill Oakley has brought about some tranquility in the last two years, but hateful, spiteful factions are still stirring the pot – which, in effect, is a detriment to the City," he

Romak, Kesner Eliminated in Primary

Making the cut to November's general-election ballot are mayoral candidates William M. Oakley, the incumbent, and challenger Leo L. Knasiak. Oakley's unofficial vote total of 1,250 put him well on top, while Knasiak's second-place total of 350 gave him a comfortable lead over Theodore Romak's 134 votes.

In the race for treasurer, candidate Pamela Morrison-Kersey was the top vote-getter, with 834, followed by Kris Moe, whose 514 votes squeezed out challenger Howard Kesner, who received a total of 413.

Altogether, 1,793 ballots were cast.

Pumpkin Festival

Everyone's invited to attend the first annual Romulus Pumpkin Festival, which will be held the weekend of September 20–21. Goddard Road will be closed from just west of Shook Road to just east of Olive Street to give everyone plenty of room for enjoying the event's variety of attractions.

For more information about the Festival's schedule of events, please see page 5.

Hotline Updates Construction Info

AAA Michigan has established a toll-free hotline (1-800-411-4823) to give Michigan motorists easy access to the latest information on construction projects along heavily traveled traffic arteries. The service was launched in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Transportation.

"This service is designed to inform travelers of construction slowdowns or detours they may encounter along major routes," said Jeff Gaydos, Corporate Communications Manager.

The report, which will be updated several times weekly, will direct callers, via a simple menu system, to information about I-75, I-94, I-96, US-31/US-131, US-23, and Detroit-area freeways. □

Reader Questions Board Member's Statements

Dear Good People:

I believe that an article which was written by Romulus Board of Education president Julie Oleszkowicz, and which appeared in the August 1997 issue of the Romulus Community Schools newspaper, Your Schools in Perspective, merits serious scrutinization.

In the article, President Oleszkowicz states that children only spend about five percent of their life in school from birth to age 18. Let's look seriously at the validity of this claim.

First, I took the first 18 years of a child's life and multiplied that by 365 days. That comes out to 6,570. Then I multiplied that by 24 hours per day, which comes out to 157,680 hours. For the child's life in school, I multiplied a 13-year school life by a 180-day school year, which computes to 2,340 days. Multiply that by a six-hour school day, and you get 14,040 hours. Bear with me; now comes the percentage part.

By dividing 14,040 (the hours of school time) into 157,680 (the hours of the first 18 years of life) you get 11.23. That, in turn, comes out to an 8.9% rate. Not even close to "about five percent of their life." But let's dig deeper.

First, let's go by the President's own words. She says, "It seems that, once children start school [italics added], they are never home." And she's right. I mean, we don't notice that the children are gone until they are — which is when they start attending school. So let's go by the ages of 5-17, their whole school life.

So, here we go again. You take 13 years multiplied by 365 days multiplied by 24 hours and you get 113,880 hours. Divide that by 14,040 (school life hours) and you get 8.11. Now the percentage is 12.33%. But that's not all.

We deal in the real world, not just abstracts. There's also preparation and travel time involved — time that really counts. Most kids get up around 7:00 a.m. and get home around 3:30 p.m. That's the real school day. So let's go by that. Our school year now increases to 19,890 hours, which brings the percentage of life spent in school to 17.48%. But there's more.

In real life, children sleep eight hours a day. Oh, they may be home, but no social interaction is possible. We know that. Truly, this time can't be counted. So, if we take away eight hours a day by 365 days by 13 years, you get 37,960 hours. Take that off the 113,880 hours of school life and you get 75,920 of conscious, waking hours. So now, if you take those 75,920 and divide them into the 19,890 hours of real, genuine school time, you come out to 26.2%! And yes, my dears, there's still more.

In real life, there are tons of extracurricular activities that schools have (sports, dramas, musicals, and clubs). Then there are the times when the little darlings have to stay over for various disciplinary reasons. Now, we know that they aren't mandatory, but many, many kids do pursue these things . . . at school . . . away from home. That takes a lot of time. And it all counts. Far, far, far more than "about five percent."

So what's the bottom line? It's this: Not only was President Oleszkowicz close to 50% off on her original statements ("about five percent" compared to 8.9%), but, based on how real life works, many, many children spend nearly as much time asleep as they do in school during their school careers. No wonder it seems "they are never home." They aren't!

It's disturbing that a person of Julie Oleszkowicz's position would be so flip-flop and careless with data that's represented as facts. Should we also trust what she says about the Parent/Community/Schools Compact?

Sincerely,
Michael H. Durtka

Protect Religious Freedom, Says Profit

By State Representative Kirk Profit (D-Ypsilanti)

On July 3, 1997, the Michigan House of Representatives unanimously passed my bill, House Bill 4376, that would create the Michigan Religious Freedom Restoration Act. It is no coincidence that a bill intended to vigorously protect religious free exercise rights was passed the day before Independence Day. Religious persecution was one of the objects which the framers of the Constitution sought to prohibit. Unfortunately, times have changed and recent developments demand the passage of House Bill 4376.

In 1990, the United States Supreme Court significantly curtailed the amount of protection guaranteed under the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment. In Employment Division v. Smith, the Supreme Court held that a free exercise challenge to a neutral and generally applicable law was barred absent additional constitutional protections.

Outraged by Smith, Congress passed the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA). In the words of the RFRA, the Smith opinion "virtually eliminated the requirement that the government justify burdens on religious exercise imposed by laws neutral toward religion." Essentially, the RFRA restored religious rights as they existed before the Smith opinion.

For a brief time, our rights to free exercise rights were vigorously protected through the RFRA. On June 25, 1997, however, our free exercise rights were once again curtailed. It was that day that the United States Supreme Court issued the Boerne v. Flores opinion. In Boerne, the Court held that Congress exceeded its authority and declared the RFRA unconstitutional.

The combined effect of the Smith and Boerne opinions do not bode well for religious freedom. In essence, any free exercise challenge against a neutral and generally applicable law will likely fail.

As a result of the Boerne case, the Michigan House of Representatives took quick action on House Bill 4376. More specifically, barely a week after the Boerne opinion, my bill was unanimously passed by the Michigan House of Representatives.

Named the Michigan Religious Freedom Restoration Act, my bill will make in statute what was, before Smith, the law of the Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment as construed by the United States Supreme Court. Specifically, my bill provides that the State shall not impose a substantial burden on the free exercise of religion unless the State has proven by clear and convincing evidence that the burden is necessary to advance a compelling governmental interest and that the means are the least restrictive to achieve the compelling governmental interest.

In conclusion, the bill I sponsored will put the bite back into religious freedom. Now that the bill has been unanimously passed by the House, it is pending before the Senate Judiciary Committee. I urge you to contact your State Senator and impress upon him/her the need to pass this bill most expeditiously.

 stated. "It's no wonder that people are constantly telling me that we need a big change on City Council."

If elected, says Baumann, he will do his part to bring a more professional atmosphere to Council meetings. "From what people have told me over and over again, they are sick and tired of the repeated personal attacks which some Council members continue to make. They're embarrassed," he explained, adding, "Disagreement is healthy, and dialogue is productive, but the circus atmosphere must end."

Improvement of the quality of life for residents is one of Baumann's top goals. "With all the prospective new development in the City, someone has to start looking after the residents. It seems that, for years, City fathers sought development at any cost. Now, in some areas, residents are paying a dear price. It should never have happened!"

Another of Baumann's goals is to have local government work with Wayne County for a complete traffic analysis of the City. "Right now, the County proposes changes in roads that will affect Metro Airport – roads that are, in some cases, dead ends." Again, he says, residents are the forgotten souls: "Travel on some local roads, at various periods of the day, is horrendous. Ecorse and Van Born, for example, are like I-94 at rush hour in Detroit – and getting worse."

But Baumann believes that the most surprising aspect of our community today is the lack of spirit or unity. "It seems that Romulus has lost its identity as a community," he commented. "I would like to see more public affairs to rekindle the pride of years past, and the only way to begin to do that is to let residents know that they count, that they're important, and that this city belongs to them!"

To learn more about the Baumann campaign, call 595-3230.

Leroy Burcroff

Lifelong Romulus resident Leroy Burcroff is another of the new faces in this fall's Council race. As one of Dean and the late Shirley Burcroff's seven children, the candidate says he knows the true meaning of "family values." Burcroff graduated from Romulus High School in 1982, and also attended Henry Ford Community College. He and wife Jerilynn have three children: Dean, age seven; Brad, who just turned six; and two-year-old Nancy.

The Burcroff family is active in the Community United Methodist Church of Romulus, where Leroy serves as president of the Methodist Men's Club.

Burcroff attributes his success to a strong work ethic instilled in him by his father, owner of Burcroff Furniture & Upholstery. As the Director of Sales for Bearing Service, Inc., he has been a successful business professional for the past 14 years, and currently manages 28 employees.

"One of my main objectives," said Burcroff, "is to raise the standard of our city council with a fresh and professional approach. I plan to bring the people's voice to the Council and make a positive difference for our city."

Burcroff believes that one of his strengths is that he is not a one-issue candidate. "I have concerns about many aspects of our city government, and I feel that my well-rounded background and good business sense will be an asset in making the crucial decisions which will face Romulus in the future.

"I am convinced that more emphasis needs to be put on long-term planning," he continued. "I'm here for the long haul, and I want Romulus to continue to grow as a community where families like mine can thrive – where our children will want to stay and put down their own roots after they're grown."

Basically, Burcroff feels that the current atmosphere of change and growth makes this a great time to get involved. "There's so much potential for improvement in Romulus now," he explained, "especially in the areas of residential and industrial growth. I want to be a part of this force for positive change. I want to be of service to my community."

Autumn Harvest Reaps Great Seasonal Recipes

By Florine Mark, president and chairman of the board of The WW Group, Inc.

There's nothing better than recipes made with in-season fruits and vegetables, so enjoy the autumn harvest by cooking with the seasonal foods of fall. It's a great time to visit a pumpkin patch, apple orchard, or roadside vegetable stand and pick up a selection of fresh fall produce.

For colorful, nutritional fall fare, try Chicken and Squash Stew. This is a great meal on a chilly fall day. Serve it over white or brown rice to make a complete dinner entrée. When shopping, select deep, richly colored squash which are blemish-free and heavy for their size.

Yam-stuffed Apples are a fanciful, fruity side dish. Although most apple varieties are available almost all year round, they are at their best in autumn. Pick apples that are firm and without bruises. Make sure that the apples have a fresh aroma, not a musty or moldy odor.

When entertaining, Pumpkin Soup with Cinnamon Toast Triangles is a wonderful way to start your evening. As an added touch, use a real pumpkin as a soup tureen. Simply carve out the pumpkin, fill it with boiling water, let it sit for a few minutes, then drain it and pour in the soup. The pumpkin will keep the soup warm and make a unique serving piece.

With the change of the season, make sure you stop to take in all of the autumn colors - and be sure to reap the harvest of fall by enjoying the flavors and savors of the season.

Chicken and Squash Stew

(makes 4 servings)

- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 1 cup diced onions
- 3 cups diced pared butternut squash
- 1 cup diced carrot
- 2 cups low-sodium chicken broth
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 10 ounces skinless boneless chicken breast, cubed
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

Place wide, medium saucepan over medium-high heat 30 seconds; add oil and heat 30 seconds more. Add onions and cook, stirring frequently, until translucent, 4-5 minutes. Add squash and carrot and cook, stirring, 3 minutes.

Stir in broth, thyme, salt, pepper, and bay leaf; bring mixture to a boil. Reduce heat to low and simmer, covered, 15 minutes.

With slotted spoon, remove 1 cup of solids, without bay leaf, to food processor or blender; add 1/2 cup liquid from saucepan and purée until smooth.

Transfer purée back to saucepan and bring to a boil. Reduce heat to low; add chicken and simmer until just cooked through, 4-5 minutes. Remove bay leaf, stir in parsley and serve immediately.

- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg or cinnamon
- Mint sprig for garnish (optional)

In medium microwavable mixing bowl, combine 2 cups water and the yam. Microwave on High (100%) for 3 minutes.

Core apples, being careful not to cut through bottoms of apples. Scoop out pulp from each apple, leaving 1/4-inch thick shells and reserving pulp; set shells aside.

Add apple pulp and shallot to yam and microwave on High for 3 minutes. Drain yam-apple mixture, discarding cooking liquid. Add margarine and nutmeg and, using a fork, mash mixture until smooth.

Fill each apple shell with half of the yam-apple mixture. Set apple shells in an 8x8x2-inch microwavable baking dish, cover, and microwave on High for 4 minutes, until thoroughly heated. Garnish with mint sprig.

Write the word(s) that fits definition #1 into the correspondingly numbered box. Next, drop one letter and anagram (rearrange) the remaining letters to find the answer to definition #2. Perform the same drop-a-letter/anagram procedure on word #2 to arrive at the answer to definition #3. Place the first dropped letter in the space to the left of answer #1 and the second in the space to the right of answer #3. Repeat this process on each line of the puzzle. If the puzzle is done correctly, the dropped letters, read from top to bottom, will spell out some timely phrases.

Proposed Disposal Facility Has Detroiters Up in Arms

By Kristi Stephens

A proposed waste disposal facility has southwest Detroit residents concerned about its potential to negatively impact the neighborhood's environment.

The Detroit Coke Corporation has applied to the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for a permit to operate such a facility on the site where its old coke plant was located, just north of Zug Island. Detroit Coke plans to use two of the site's existing deep-wells – reportedly drilled in the mid 1970s for private use in disposing of ammonia liquor and other toxic chemicals associated with the company's operations – to dispose of privately generated hazardous wastes as well as nonhazardous wastes that it would accept from American and Canadian customers. Further, if the company decided, at a later date, to try to amend its permit application in order to accept commercial hazardous wastes, it would have to seek permission from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) to construct and operate an above-ground facility that would allow for storage and treatment of those wastewater prior to their disposal.

But many residents are wondering how Detroit Coke – which, according to a WXYZ-TV/Channel 7 news report aired on September 10, has been out of business since 1991, and has unpaid debts totalling approximately $45 million, including more than $250,000 in air-pollution fines – can be considered for a permit. There also seems to be some question as to what other companies may be involved in the project, and who would be ultimately responsible for any problems at the site. For instance, Channel 7's Frank Turner reported that a company called Liquid Technology has been identified as the limited liability company that "will take full responsibility for all future operational environmental compliance and liability," but Allen Melcer, the EPA-Region V permit writer handling the Detroit Coke application, said that he was unfamiliar with the company, and that it was his belief that the EPA would hold Detroit Coke responsible for any necessary cleanups. Sara Lile, Director of Detroit's Environmental Office, agreed. "Detroit Coke is the owner of this property," she told Channel 7, "and the obligation for that property rests with them."

The fact that the proposed location is already polluted from previous operations is also of special concern.

According to Melcer, the EPA is currently investigating the Detroit site to identify areas of contamination so that the company can begin a voluntary cleanup program. But, he added, it is possible that the EPA could grant Detroit Coke's permit requests before the site is totally rehabilitated, as long as the company is actively working toward cleanup of the site and furnishes plans for continued efforts in the future.

Thomas Wellman, Supervisor of the Geological Survey Division's Permits and Bonding Unit at the DEQ, says that his office has not yet received a permit application from Detroit Coke. However, if and when such an application is received, the DEQ's policy regarding the cleanup of any previous contamination would be similar to the EPA's – in other words, the site need not be completely rehabilitated before beginning new operations, as long as cleanup plans can be demonstrated.

Because the Detroit Coke facility would be at least superficially similar to facilities which Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. (EDS), plans to operate in Romulus, many area residents are watching the developments in Detroit with interest. However, several significant differences between the two do exist, and these differences may mean that the Detroit Coke project has a much greater potential for adverse environmental impact. Areas of concern include the facility's immediate proximity to the Detroit River, and whether the EPA and/or DEQ would require Detroit Coke to upgrade the engineering of wells that are more than two decades old and may have been designed to handle only a few specialized waste streams.

But perhaps most ominous, from the point of view of many residents, is the fact that information concerning one portion of Detroit Coke's permit application cannot be elicited from the EPA through a typical Freedom of Information Act request because the company has asked the EPA to keep it confidential, claiming that it contains proprietary business information. According to Melcer, the EPA will comply with Detroit Coke's request because the agency's attorneys are of the opinion that the material does qualify for consideration as confidential business information.

David Werbach, the EPA permit writer handling EDS' application, says that Romulus-area residents seeking similar information regarding EDS' proposed facilities will face no such stone-wall, since the company long ago agreed to make all pertinent information available to the public.

When contacted about his reaction to Detroit Coke's plans, and any comparison that might be drawn between the two companies, EDS owner and president Douglas Wicklund stated, "We at EDS are especially proud of our proposed Citrin Drive facility, which will be state-of-the-art and technologically advanced well into the 21st century." □

Local Law Firm Has New Associate

By Rikki Strobs

Welcome to Cara L. (Cichowski) Cunningham, who joined the law firm of Oakley & Oakley earlier this month after concluding a clerkship with United States Magistrate Judge Virginia M. Morgan.

The daughter of longtime Romulus residents Jerry and Susan Cichowski, Cunningham graduated from Romulus High School at age 16, then went on to receive a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University in 1993 and a juris doctorate from the University of Detroit Mercy School of Law in 1996. While at Michigan State, she was president of the Student Council and was named "outstanding senior" in 1993. At University of Detroit Mercy, she was a Moot Court Board director and won both regional and national Moot Court honors.

"I feel great about coming home to practice law," Cunningham enthused. "I'm looking forward to dealing with people on a personal level in order to assist them with any legal problems they might have."

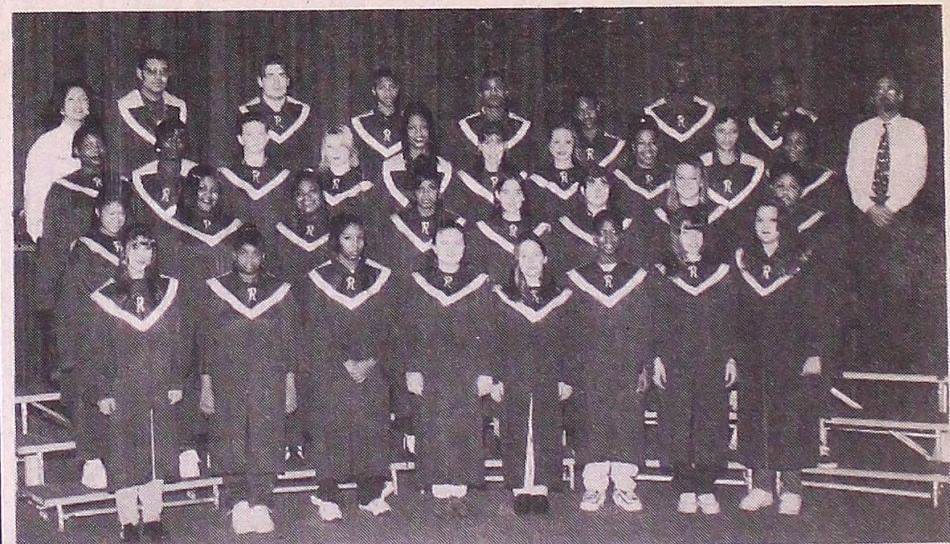

Cara L. (Cichowski) Cunningham

Cunningham believes that her special interest in the personal injury and employment law areas will blend well with Oakley & Oakley's existing general-practice office.

Stop in and say hello to Cara at the Oakley & Oakley offices (located at 36830 Goddard Road in downtown Romulus) or call her to discuss your legal problems (941-1920). □

Talented Students Seek Support

Romulus High School is currently conducting a special fund-raising effort for Romulus Community Schools choir, dance, and drama programs to assist in upgrading performance facilities and supporting student activities.

Local residents are being contacted and asked to purchase items such as delicious frozen pizza, French-bread pizza, gourmet roasted nuts, Amish-style fudge, durable trash bags, useful first-aid kits, and lifesaving fire extinguishers. All products will be delivered to the customer's doorstep at no extra charge.

Cash donations are also welcome.

Last April, the group raised about $800, thanks to the generous support of local residents. The funds were used to purchase additional choir robes for the growing High School Concert Choir and a tape recorder that allows students to hear how they performed and make necessary adjustments. The monies were also used to help offset the cost of attending a special dance day at Wayne State University, and to purchase rewards for students who participated in performances and successfully accomplished hard work during class.

For more information, or to make a donation, please contact Judith Thompson-Barthwell, Director of Choirs/Dance, at 941-2170, ext. 503. □

Haircuts

Senior citizens can come into the Romulus Senior Center for $5 haircuts on the second Monday of each month beginning at 1 p.m. Walk-ins are always welcome, but, for your own convenience, the Center recommends calling ahead for an appointment. Note: Since "shampoo" facilities are not available, seniors must arrive with clean hair.

Hot Lunch

For just $1.50, Romulus seniors (age 60 and over) can enjoy a hot lunch at the Center any weekday at 11:30 a.m. Call the Romulus Senior Center at least 24 hours in advance to make a reservation. Home delivery of hot meals is also available for qualified individuals. For more information about the "Meals on Wheels" program, please call 1-800-851-1454.

Volunteers Wanted

The Wayne County Office of Nutrition Services is seeking volunteers to deliver hot meals to home-bound seniors in Romulus. All that is needed is a willing heart, transportation, and 30 to 60 minutes, one to five mornings per week. Volunteers receive a 21-cents-per-mile reimbursement. For more information, call Fran Ryder at 326-4441.
